TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,
May 4th, 1914.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Alexander in the chair.

Present—Reeve Denison and Councilors Walters, Wiseman, Waller, Carson and Graham.

The minutes of the last regular session were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Devinne & Snider, attorneys-at-law, Detroit. They were making enquiries in reference to the locating of a branch of an American industry in Canada. The writers did not state what the product of the industry was, but wished to know if there was any capital in the town which would be interested.

The Clerk was instructed to answer the communication explaining the location of our town in reference to shipping facilities, etc., and also furnish all the information at his command.

Chief of Police J. J. Graham made application for a new suit of uniform and also asked that F. Barrett, night policeman, be provided with a suit of uniform.

On motion of Councilors Graham and Walters the request was granted, said uniforms not to exceed in price the sum of $30 each.

A communication was read from the Napanee Iron Works saying they understood the town was considering the purchase of a rock drill. Their price for a new drill was $215, or they could sell a good second-hand one, guaranteed, for $140.

The Clerk was instructed to reply that the town had already purchased a drill.

TENDERS.

The following tenders asked for by the town were received and dealt with:

Street Sprinkling—John Benn, $3.50 per day; E. B. Miller, $3.50 per day; A. Clarke, $3.50 per day; T. Killorin, $3.50 per day. The tenders of John Benn and E. B. Miller were accepted.

Street Sprinkler—Two tenders were received, one from Sawyer Massey, offering a 500 gallon sprinkler for $375.00, and a 600 gallon sprinkler for $400.00; one from Francis Hankin, Montreal, offering a 600 gallon sprinkler at $410.00.

Moved by Coun. Walters and Reeve Denison that the tender of Sawyer Massey Co., for 600 gallon sprinkler be accepted, terms to be cash, 60 days.

Coun. Waller objected to the purchasing of a sprinkler out of the general fund when only a certain number of ratepayers would be benefited.

Moved by Coun. Waller, seconded by Coun. Graham, that the tenders be referred to the streets committee to report at next meeting of council carried.

"Island City" Paint

Made by R. C. Jamieson & Co., Montreal.

Originally we intended to only get such colors as would blend with the colorings in our Wall Paper—but the paint is so superior and the demand is so great we have been forced to put in a full line of colors.

Quite a number of our patrons—having used some of this paint—will now use no other kind. One lady yesterday said she painted her hall with "Island City" and her living room with another grade for which she paid more money and to-day the hall looks as good as ever while the other room needs re-painting. Until further notice we will sell this celebrated paint at

DOXSEE & CO. MILLINERY

We are opening to-day a choice lot of New Millinery suitable for spring and summer.

The artistic note is strongly pronounced in most of the hats and there are very few, if any, shapes which are too extreme to be generally becoming and to appeal to the taste of the most discriminating wearer.

The use of Taffeta and Moire in both piece goods and ribbon has certainly been revived to greater honors than ever before, they are shown in all colors.

The underbrim trimming is a new feature of Flowers, Osprey, Smart Feather Mounts, Stick-Ups and Wing Trimmings, all being considered very good.

We would also draw your attention to our Children's Hats.

Lovely New Blouses in sizes from 34 to 42. Come and see them.

A Famous Old Paper.

It would be difficult to find a paper with a more romantic history than La Gazette de Hollande. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries statesmen of the first rank were her contributors—Lord Chesterfield and Frederick the Great, king of Prussia, to name but two of an illustrious roll.
During the war of independence Washington sought the sympathy of Europe through its columns. In 1810 it was temporarily suppressed by Napoleon.
In its modern form La Gazette has accomplished good work in making the Netherlands and her colonies better known beyond their own boundaries.

MUST INCREASE REVENUE

Lloyd George Proposes Extension of Income Tax

LONDON, May 5.—David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, introduced the Budget House of Commons yesterday estimated the deficit for 1914-15 at $6,650,000. Adding to this against the Exchequer of $21,000,000 arising from readjustment of relations between Imperial taxation, and a necessary $1,000,000, the Chancellor the need of increasing the income for the coming year to $49,000,000.

Mr. Lloyd George's proposal to raise this money include a 20 per cent. increase in the rate of the tax on earned and unearned income, the raising of the death duty maximum of 20 per cent.

He plans also to reduce the burden to the man who has money on his property to proportion to the amount so owned.

He proposed an upward revision

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

the graduated income tax, increasing the levy upon earned income to $5,000 a year.

There would be levied a tax on incomes of $15,000 a year upwards, instead of this super-grossing, as it does at present incomes of $25,000 a year.

With this new graduated income tax rates rising finally in the pound, the total income certain cases, would be as low as 32d. (approximately 64 cent the pound sterling).

The allowance for children's income whose incomes do not exceed $2,500 a year would be doubled.

The Chancellor declared his purpose to make Englishmen who invest abroad in order to escape the income tax pay their share and he said that the death duties over $300,000 would be a graduated increase until the sum would be 20 per cent. of the 15 per cent. collected at present.

PICTURE IS SLASHED

Portrait of Henry James by, & Ruined by Suffragette.

LONDON, May 5.—The portrait of Henry James, the novelist, by Singer Sargent, hanging in one of the galleries of the Royal Academy, virtually ruined yesterday afternoon by a suffragette.

The woman who committed the outrage, gave her name as Wood. She belongs to the group of militants called "The Wild Women." Armed with a butcher's cleaver, Wood approached the painting, slashed the cleaver from under the cloak, and slashed the picture several times before bystanders seized and stopped her. When the police arrived on the scene Mrs. Wood was led over to them.

The picture damaged by Mrs. Wood was one of the most prominent vases at the exhibition.

JAIL IS CONDEMNED.

Toronto's Bastile a Disgrace to Civilization Says Dr. B. Smit

TORONTO, May 5.—Violent denunciation of the Toronto Jail by the greater part of the report of Dr. R. W. Bruce, Government inspector of prisons to the City Council and read today. The report tells of a lamentable condition of affairs, and commands that unless a new jail be built at once, the Governor withhold its grant for maintenance prisoners. Parts of it read as follows:

"Conditions as they prevail are a disgrace to any civilized community. During the past winter have been nights when more prisoners slept on the floor than the cells of Toronto jail."

"There is no other jail in America where such conditions would be tolerated. Fancy 100 men under sentence having to sleep every night of the past winter on the floor mattresses."

"A modern, up-to-date jail must be built without delay. I recommend to the Government until these provisions are made grant for maintenance of prisoners withheld."

To Stop Street Spitting.

MONTREAL, May 5.—The spunk disturbers and loafers in the city will get small comfort in the recorder's court. A number of offenders yesterday were all fined. "real is notorious for spitting," Recorder Semple. "It is quite possible for ladies to walk the streets in some parts of the city without being subjected to annoyance from this habit, as things must be stopped." Five dollars and costs is the preliminary stipulation.

Queen Eleanor Not Coming

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 5.—Eleanor of Bulgaria has definitely decided not to visit America this year as she had contemplated. An announcement to this effect was issued yesterday. It read:

"In view of events in America which Queen Eleanor follows with especial interest, her Majesty's visit to the United States has been postponed until the circumstances more favorable."

INCREASE REVENUE.

George Proposes Extensive Revision of Income Tax.

ON, May 5.—David Lloyd Chancellor of the Exchequer introduced the Budget in the Commons yesterday, and the deficit for 1914-15 is £100,000. Adding to this a charge on the Exchequer of $21,090,000 from readjustment of the relation between Imperial and local and a necessary margin of £100,000, the Chancellor showed a deficit of increasing the national income for the coming year by about £100,000.

Lloyd George's proposals to raise money include a material increase in the rate of the tax levied on unearned incomes, and an increase of the death duties to a rate of 20 per cent.

He also proposes to reduce the tax on the man who expends his property to improve in the amount so spent. He proposed an upward revision of unearned income tax, increasing upon earned incomes over £100,000.

There would be levied a supertax of £15,000 a year and instead of this supertax because it does at present, with £25,000 a year.

His new graduated scale of tax rates rises finally to 16d. and, the total income tax, in cases, would be as high as approximately 64 cents), in £1 sterling.

Provision for children of parents whose incomes do not exceed £100,000 would be doubled.

The Chancellor declared he proposed that Englishmen who made their money abroad in order to escape income tax pay their dues. He said that the death duties on property over £300,000 would undergo an increase until the maximum would be 20 per cent., instead of 10 per cent. collected at

CARRANZA IS OMITTED

Peace Negotiations Go on Without Leader of Rebels.

South American Envoys In View of His Refusal to Agree to an Armistice Withdraw Their Invitation to Him to Send Representative—Huerta's Condition in Capital Is Desperate.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Gen. Carranza and the Constitutionalists yesterday were practically eliminated from the proceedings of the three South American envoys who have undertaken to solve the Mexican problem by diplomacy.

In a telegram to Gen. Carranza, the mediators announced that, in view of his refusal to agree to an armistice with Gen. Huerta, they withdrew their invitation to him to send a personal representative to participate in the mediation negotiations.

The language of the telegram sent by the mediators leaves open to Carranza, however, the privilege of sending a special representative to participate in peace negotiations whenever he is willing to arrange an armistice with Huerta.

This new turn in events ended, in the view of many officials the chance of solving the entire Mexican problem immediately, though it did not lessen the enthusiasm of the mediators, who will continue their efforts to solve the differences between Huerta and the United States, which directly brought about the present crisis.

Reports of the desperate condition of Huerta at Mexico City continue to circulate, and with such circumstantial detail from authentic sources as to leave no doubt of his critical condition.

At the same time the military aspect of the situation became increasingly prominent again. Gen. Funston reported renewed demands by Mexican Federal outposts and the surrender of the water works supplying Vera Cruz. No shots were fired and the Mexicans fell back.

Gen. Funston voiced the prevailing spirit in military quarters in enquiring as to what steps the United States contemplated in view of the threatening situation.

Secretary Garrison conferred with his military chiefs, but said no further orders had been given for the movement of troops, and none are contemplated during the period of negotiations.

SPECULATION DISASTROUS.

Stock Trading Responsible For Dale Bank Crash Say Auditors.

MADOC, May 5.—"Speculation on the Stock Exchange, which in the long run proved disastrous," is given by auditors as the cause of the failure of the Dale private bank here. It is said that ever since 1902 trading in stocks has been going on, sometimes unsuccessfully. Discrepancies of $201,955 between the last annual statement of the bank and the actual assets are reported by the auditors, Webb, Read, Callaghan, Hogan & Co., made public yesterday. The discrepancies are on the following: Overdrafts, $3,231,737; current bills and loans, $58,321.28; Osler & Hammond, $384.48; debenture account, $198,025.20; mortgage account, $10,

Unknown Tramp Steamer Burning--No Sign of Crew.

Wireless Call to "Hurry Up" Is Received at Sable Island Wireless Station But Vessels Which Answer the Summons Can See No Boats Nor Sign of Life on Ill-fated Ship—Crew Probably Saved.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 5.—An unknown steamer, on fire from stern to stern and with no signs of life on board, was discovered 300 miles south south of Cape Race yesterday by the steamer Seydlitz from Bremen for New York. Her position was given as latitude 41.27 north and longitude 51.07 west. The Seydlitz immediately called by wireless for assistance and response came from the Franconia, 50 miles to the eastward, bound for Boston, and the Olympic 200 miles to the west, headed for New York.

The Seydlitz circled around the burning vessel, but the smoke hung so heavy about her that her name could not be distinguished.

As no small boats were discovered in the vicinity, and as the Olympic had passed not far from the scene 12 or 15 hours before, it was believed here last night that the unnamed vessel caught fire some time after midnight, and that all hands were rescued by some ship which had no wireless.

No More Reimbursement.

OTTAWA, May 5.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux asked if it was the intention of the Government to reimburse the depositors of the bank which recently failed at Madoc.

The Finance Minister said it was not. The bank in question was a private bank.

Mr. White, in reply to a further question, said it was not the intention to recoup the depositors of any bank except the Farmers' Bank of Canada.

NAILED TO A CROSS.

Mexican Bishop Refused To Give Money to Zapata's Men.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—Among the tales of atrocities told yesterday by the refugees from the west coast of Mexico, who arrived Sunday on the steamer City of Sydney, is that of the crucifixion of the Catholic Bishop of Chalapa.

According to the account, a detachment of the rebel Gen. Zapata's soldiers called on the bishop to sur- render the funds of his church. He refused, whereupon the soldiers are said to have nailed him to a cross and left him to die.

Bisley Team To Get Fares.

OTTAWA, May 5.—The council of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association has decided, for this year, to pay the first-class railway fares of all members of the Bisley team, from their homes to Montreal and return. It has been the custom in the past for all members of the team to pay their own railway expenses to the place of mobilization. All transpor- tation from their homes to Bisley and return has been provided for.

As small boats were discovered in the vicinity, and as the Olympic had passed not far from the scene 12 or 15 hours before, it was believed here last night 'ha' the unnamed vessel caught fire some time after midnight, and that all hands were rescued by some ship which had no wireless.

The weather on the Grand Banks yesterday was moderate, and it was thought that any transhipment could have been accomplished with no great amount of difficulty or danger.

The Marine and Fisheries Depart- ment last night received a wireless despatch from Sable Island station from the steamer Seydlitz stating that the hulk of the burning ship was high out of the water. The funnel and the foremast were gone. The steamer had evidently been burning for some time. The burning ship has a high poop.

The wireless station at Sable Island Sunday night picked up part of a message that was evidently passing between two steamers equipped with wireless. The message read:

"Hurry up; we are on fire." At- mospheric conditions then interrupted and no more details of the ocean tragedy could be learned.

It is believed that the ill-fated ship was a tramp steamer.

SENATOR GIBSON DEAD.

Veteran Liberal Passes Away In Beamsville, Aged 64.

HAMILTON, May 5.—Senator Gib- son of Beamsville, died shortly before noon yesterday.

Hon. William Gibson was born at Peterhead, Scotland, on Aug. 2, 1849. He was a railway contractor and member of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers, and owned and operated two of the most extensive limestone quarries in Canada near Beamsville and Crookston, Ont.

He was a president of the Bank of Hamilton, of the Hamilton Gas Light Co., the Keewatin Lumber & Manu- facturing Co., the Keewatin Power Co. He was a director of the Canada Screw Co., the Canada life Assurance Co., and of the Hamilton Provident & Loan Society.

In 1891 he was returned as Liberal member for Lincoln and Niagara. He was defeated at the general election in 1900.

His services were recognized in 1902, when on Feb. 11 he was called to the Senate.

Eased His Mind.

Having suffered mental anguish, to say nothing of damage to my reputa- tion as a poet, from typographical dis- arrangements, transpositions and other accidents incidental to the careless handling of verse, I submit herewith a form of stanza which I believe to be proof against such vicissitudes. It reads the same backward and forward, up and down and standing on your head:

WE SHOULD WORRY.

Should we all worry?
We should worry, all.
All worry, should we?
Worry all we should.

IS ANGRY WITH HUERTA.

Gen. Velasco Who Defended Torreón May Start a Revolt.

VERA CRUZ, May 5.—The out- break of another military revolt in Mexico, headed by Gen. Jose Refugio Velasco, who was recently driven out of Torreón by Francisco Villa, would not cause any great surprise in the Federal capital, according to conser- vative observers among the refugees who arrived here yesterday. Gen. Velasco is said to be grievously dis- contented concerning the failure of the Government in Mexico City to support him properly in the defence of Torreón, and he is declared to have stated that he would never again lead a column of troops against the rebels.

The fall of Torreón and the subse- quent disaster to the Federal troops are asserted by Gen. Velasco to have been entirely due to the failure of the War Department to heed his appeal for small arm ammunition at a time when he says it was perfectly feasible for it to have reached him.

two Provincial elections. But among partisans though they have been they cannot swallow the Government's "deal" with Mackenzie and Mann; they cannot support Mr. Borden's proposals which are made "in the interests of railway contractors" and which are contrary "to the interests of the people"; men of keen minds, they are not fooled by the Government's insidiously drafted legislation nor by misleading statements sent out by the Ministry for the purpose of lulling the public into quiescence and making it easy to put $45,000,000 in the way of railway magnates who have already received scores of millions from the Canadian people and have grown wealthy in the receiving.

But the Government's legislation will go through. Mackenzie and Mann know that, save Mr. Bennett and Mr. Nickle, all the Government supporters in the House put the party and Mackenzie and Mann first, the public interest second. They will support the "deal", remembering the aid which the Conservatives received from Mackenzie and Mann in the 1911 campaign and bearing in mind that there are other elections to come. The Liberals will fight the proposals with all their power but sheer force of numbers and the existence of the closure rule makes sure the Government's success in driving through the legislation which Conservative public men have emphatically described as "in the interests of railway contractors and not in the interests of the people."

ANOTHER "DEAL."

How a Friend of the Borden Government Made Money—The Story Told The Public Accounts Committee.

Another piece of evidence as to the extraordinary way in which the present Ottawa Government does business was supplied in the Public Accounts Committee of the Commons last week when the story of the purchase of a site for a post office at Port Frances, Ontario, was told. Apparently, all that happened in the deal was that a friend of the Government, appointed to act as agent for the Dominion in the purchase of the property, secured the land required for $8,350 and turned it over to the country for $16,500. A trivial thing to the Borden Cabinet, no doubt, but it cost the people of Canada more than $8,000 of public money.

In July, 1912, according to evidence given before the committee, Mr. A. D.

adian industries, destroy Canadian railways, create financial depression, bring widespread unemployment all over the Dominion. "Defeat the Liberals and Reciprocity, save Canada, preserve and increase Canadian prosperity" was the Conservative cry.

The Liberals were defeated. What has followed in the time which has elapsed since that defeat and the accession of the Borden Government to office?

To-day Canada is experiencing the worst period of financial depression in many years. Many Canadian industrial plants have been shut down; others are working on part time only. The earnings of Canadian railways have been decreasing. Unemployment prevails to an extent hitherto unknown in the Dominion.

In Toronto not long ago hundreds of men thronged eagerly to an office which had advertised a vacancy upon its staff. In Hamilton, Ontario, on April 15th, four hundred men paraded the streets idle, seeking any work which would earn them food. In Montreal on April 20th, 5,000 out-of-work men besieged the city hall to plead for work from the civic authorities. A few days later two hundred more gathered before the residence of a Montreal alderman to enlist his support to find them work. In an interview last week the president of the Montreal Trades and Labor Council, Mr. J. T. Foster, spoke pessimistically of labor conditions in his city telling of men who sought work in vain. Mr. Mr. James Usher, of the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union, Ottawa, declared to the Ottawa Citizen last week that labor conditions in that city were worse at this time than at any other time during the past twenty-six years. Similar reports have come from other Canadian cities. The Labor Gazette, official publication of the Dominion Department of Labor, in speaking of the labor conditions prevailing throughout Canada during March admits that "there were a large number of unemployed in most of the big cities."

Various reasons are given by the Borden Ministers and their newspapers for the present conditions. Hon. Mr. White, for example, talks loftily of "the phenomena of recurring world-cycles" of depression. But the outstanding fact remains: In place of abundant prosperity and abundant employment there has come to Canada under Borden rule, a period of severe depression and scarcity of work for the laboring man. To make matters worse, moreover, the Government is plunging into reckless, wasteful expenditures, squandering millions on armories and other unproductive works, and adding to the burdens of the people by raising the tariff for the benefit of the Special Interests, which placed it in power.

THE CONSUMER IS PAYING.

Action of the Borden Government in Raising the Tariff is Increasing the Profits of the Few at the Expense of the Many.

A concrete example of the effect of tariffs in adding to the burdens of the people was cited in the Commons last week by Mr. Francis McCrea, the Liberal member for Sherbrooke. Already as he showed the action of the Ottawa Government in raising the tariff on steel has had the effect of increasing the price which Canadian consumers are compelled to pay for certain steel products.

"If there is any doubt in the minds of honorable members, as to who pays this encouragement of the steel industry," he said, as reported on Page 3154, Unrevised Hansard, "I will give a little personal experience. The company with which I am connected is engaged in the construction of a paper mill, and during the 1911 campaign, the Liberals were roughly attacked by Hon. Arthur Meighen and other Conservatives because rate reduction had not been accomplished. With the attacks went many Conservative promises as to the early and effective action which would be taken by Mr. Borden if he were returned to power.

Mr. Borden was returned to power considerably more than two years ago. The ocean rates have not been reduced. No really earnest endeavor has been made to gain any measure of control of these rates. Instead the farmers and the millers and other Canadian interests have to rest with a speech by Hon. George E. Foster magnifying the difficulties of the problem. It is this failure of the Government to take action absolutely necessary in the interests of Canada which has led the Ontario Conservative to suggest bluntly that a government which cannot do things should "give place to another." How complete must be the Government's neglect of Canadian interests in this connection when one of its own supporters feels called upon to suggest its resignation.

Borden's Latest Deal with Mackenzie and Mann Brings Total Assistance Given Them up to $26,000,000—Two Railway Men Made Millionaires at Public Expense.

Up to the present time Mackenzie and Mann, who own the Canadian Northern Railway but have put little or none of their own money into its construction and operation, have received assistance from the people of Canada amounting to more than $214,000,000. The two railway magnates do not think this sum sufficient and Premier Borden agrees with them so the Government has introduced legislation to give further assistance to Mackenzie and Mann by way of a bond guarantee of $45,000,000. The Government's proposals were submitted to caucus before their introduction in the House and were endorsed by all save two of the Conservative members, Mr. R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, and Mr. W. F. Nickle, of Kingston, refusing their approval on the ground that the legislation proposed by the Premier and his colleagues is "in the interest of railway contractors and not in the interest of the people."

The aid heretofore given to Mackenzie and Mann has been in the form of cash subsidies, bond guarantees and land grants. The subsidies and guarantees have totalled $177,658,848. The land grants have amounted to 6,102,848 acres. Valuing these lands at the low figure of $6 an acre the total of $214,000,000, in round numbers, is reached. If the present Borden proposals are driven through Parliament, as no doubt they will be despite Liberal opposition, Mackenzie and Mann will have been given public assistance in one form or another amounting to the stupendous total of practically $260,000,000.

Last year Premier Borden and his colleagues handed over to Mackenzie and Mann a cash gift of $15,400,000.

AN UGLY VISITOR

His Unwelcome Call Brought a Dramatic Situation.

The London representative East Indian firm was working the warehouse. A large consignment of goods, newly arrived, lay room that adjoined his office room was a simple affair of four covered walls. There was a table in the middle, a few chairs, and a fireproof safe. It was nearly midnight when a sound from the next room reduced the man to go to the door to investigate. Nothing seemed wrong but he returned to his work, but the door ajar.

Presently a faint, harsh sound from the next room. He sprang to behold the head of a snake protruding through the doorway.

When the reptile saw him it for a second, reared its head was almost on a level with the ceiling and began to dart its tongue in and out of its mouth.

No novelist ever imagined a desperate situation. The man armed and apparently without fear of escape. The moment he saw his eyes from those of the snake lowered its head and moved him.

But he had already determined his course. The great safe stood behind him and he closed it behind him, although he did not know it completely. That would have been a small suffocation slipped a small cashbook into the crevice and held the ponderous door about half an inch.

Meanwhile the python—for was—in a paroxysm of fury, his coils twice round the safe stood some distance out from the creature drew its coils to most tension in an angry effort to crush the iron safe.

By an effort the desperate man collected his wits. He remembered that a case, slightly damaged, "to be kept in a warm place," had been put in the joining room, and doubtless accounted for his horrible visitor. But the planation, although simple, offered consolation. Something must be done. The captive racked his brain until an idea struck him. Early in the evening he had put one of the iron safe with a long, black inside to mark a special "Cramped" and almost doubled was, he found it no easy matter to reach the slender weapon, the handle which was as sharp as a razor. He plunged the knife again and again the folds of the snake, who crossed the small aperture. The python lowered a horrible, tearing sound the massive safe rocked on some moments. Then sudden folds seemed to relax and go to the floor.

Owing to the extreme tension the coils the keen blade had almost severed the body in half. From the tail it measured nearly forty feet.

SINGSONG PETE

He Proves a Blessing
In Disguise

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The lower rim of the sun rested on the edge of the horizon, a huge orange ball against the background of copper red sky.

Nancy Barton watched it slowly sink below the flat Texas plain until all at once it was gone and the weird twilight was about her.

With a little sigh she turned her horse to the low hills that bounded the northeast. Her black Judy skimmed over the ground with velvet feet, and the passage of the graceful girl would never come after the way I treated him. I can't expect it. No man with red blood in him would do it."

"Roger would do it, dad," said Nancy quietly. "Just because he has got red blood in his veins would he forgive an injury and help? He's a man!"

Barton stared down at the girl. "Nancy! I believe—I believe you really did care!" He stopped short as Nan lifted her gloved hand.

"Dad, you can believe almost anything of a foolish girl," she whispered. "Give me a cup of tea and let me go. They are cowards, and they will not shoot me if I run across the gang, but I will go the lower trail if it will lessen your anxiety. You and Hep Loo remain in the house and protect the place." Nancy arose and ran into the house, where Aunt Hepsy, the stout negress, was waiting impatiently to serve supper.

Nancy drank a cup of tea and ate a few mouthfuls of food; then, with a last close embrace from her father, who had protested even while he saw that her pistols were loaded and that Judy was ready at the door, she swung into the saddle and vanished into the night.

Then James Barton worked swiftly. Within an hour the house was closely shuttered and loaded weapons placed at all the upper windows.

Silence fell over the ranch. Hepsy lumbered uneasily about her room, while Barton, kneeling in an upper window, watched the entrances by which the enemy might be expected. While he waited he thought of Nancy flying for help and asking Roger Dare, of all men!

In the darkness Barton blushed. When Roger Dare had first come to the cattle country the finger of suspicion had pointed heavily at him in a very dubious transaction. Barton had been one of his most relentless accusers; he had really believed the man guilty. There had been a lynching stopped at the critical instant by news of the capture of the guilty man, and Roger had been set free, but his stern attitude toward his accusers had told them that he had not forgotten the insult and injury their unjust accusations had brought upon him.

James Barton had made handsome apology for the injustice, and in more ways than one had he been of service to the young rancher, but quite unknown to Roger, for it is probable that that stern young man might have refused the aid that came from unknown sources. Then Barton's contrition had an added bitterness, for Roger had fallen promptly in love with Nancy, and there might have been a romance there on the Texas plain had not the unfortunate affair come up to blight it in the bud.

Now, this very evening Barton had discovered something in Nancy's tone that betrayed her secret. She loved Roger after all. That was what had worn upon her during the past year, although she had maintained her cheerful demeanor. He swore softly under his breath as he thought of how he had failed after all to make his motherless daughter entirely happy, and that was all he lived for.

So James Barton waited for the enemy to come and burn his home, if they could, but his thoughts traveled aside by side with the gallant young man speeding through the night surrounded by unseen dangers.

FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Own Story.

London, Ont.—"I am a farmer's wife and a very busy woman. Last summer

I was taken with severe pains in my back so bad that I could not get up or scarcely move without pain, and my periods were painful. My husband called in a good doctor and I was, under his care for some time, but he did me little or no good.

One day a friend of mine told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had been greatly helped by it. I began taking it and soon got well, and my periods became natural again. Since then I have had perfect health. In fact I have never felt so well in my life. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine many women need. If you think this letter will help other women please publish it."—Mrs. K. C. YOUNG, Tambling's Corner, London, Ontario, Canada.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Roger Dare, coming back from that wild chase over the border in pursuit of Singsong Pete and his band, rode into the Barton yard and met Barton's hearty hand clasp with one equally warm. No one heard the few words they uttered as they stood there side by side, but that very instant the feud between them died.

There was a light patter of hoofs at the gate, and Nancy came riding in on Judy. The girl, her face now pale and rosy, slipped from the saddle and looked from her father to Roger Dare.

"I am so glad you are safe—safe, father," she sobbed, clinging to Barton. "I told you he would come!"

"Yes, darling," smiled Barton over her sunny head. "He has come, indeed, and he tells me that he has come to stay!"

Nancy was silent for awhile, and then she timidly put a hand toward

Then as they passed into the deep rough voices in discussion. For a moment her heart thrilled with terror, for the Barton ranch was very near the Mexican border, and in these uncertain days there was a growing spirit of lawlessness among the rough characters that invested the neighborhood.

The voices came from a little hollow on the left of the trail, and Nancy was glad of the protection afforded by the great trees that surrounded her.

She pulled Judy to a standstill and listened sharply.

Five minutes afterward she had emerged from the grove and was tearing down the trail toward home.

Her appearance in the yard brought her father into the porch and the cook into the doorway of the bunk house.

"That you, Nan?" cried her father relievedly. "I've been wild about you for the last hour. I know you can take care of yourself, but remember what I told you about staying out after dark. Why, what is it, child?
You are trembling." Mr. Barton lifted the girl from the saddle, and she sank limply on to the steps.

"You no see men, Miss Nancy?"
shrilled Hep Loo across the yard. He waved a spoon toward his waiting supper table in the bunk house.

"They will come later, Hep Loo," said Nancy faintly, and as the Chinaman returned muttering to his kitchen she said to her father: "Dad, what shall we do? I came home through the grove, and I overheard our men here plotting to burn the ranch and run the cattle across the border."

"You are sure, daughter?" demanded Barton sharply, for he had trusted his cowboys to a man.

"Yes. I heard all their voices. Sing-song Pete seemed to be the leader. It is planned for tonight."

"I wonder if they are coming back to supper," mused Barton.

"No. They planned the raid, and after it is accomplished they are to rush in and appear to rescue me. Oh, dad, they said they would finish you,
and you know what that means—and!"—Nancy's voice broke a little, and her father knew that when his brave daughter's courage wavered there was danger indeed, and he guessed that she had not told him all she had overheard.

"We need help. How shall we get it?" he muttered.

"Let me go, father. I am safer riding than I am here," she shuddered.

"Where will you go, child? You could never ride to Fenby's in time, and!"—

"I will go and get Roger Dare," said
Nancy.

Mr. Barton started.

"Roger Dare?" he repeated. "He was named after an to make his moun-terless daughter entirely happy, and that was all he lived for.

So James Barton waited for the enemy to come and burn his home, if they could, but his thoughts traveled side by side with the gallant young man speeding through the night surrounded by unseen dangers.

The lower trail led away from the chestnut grove and its concealed plotters. The trail skirted the foot of a hill and then followed the dry bed of Cinder creek, plunged through the narrow confines of Cinder canyon and emerged on Roger Dare's north range.

Nancy Barton, leaning low in the saddle, rode the miles unflinchingly.
Her pride must suffer in going to Roger Dare for help. But what mattered?
She thought of her brave, gray haired father standing off the crowd of desperadoes single handed, and she spurred Judy to greater effort.

The stones rattled in the dry bed of the creek, and then the dark plunge through the little canyon was accomplished with heaven only knows what hairbreadth escapes from death or disaster, and then Judy's feet pounded over the grass of Roger Dare's land.

A dog barked in the distance, a light flared in a window, other lights sprang out around the house, and when Nancy arrived on the almost winded mare she was at once surrounded by a circle of excited men, with Roger Dare in their midst.

"What has happened?" asked Roger,
his hand on Judy's neck.

In a few broken words Nancy told him, and then, reeling in the saddle,
she murmured:

"I'm not going to faint. I never fainted in my life." And she straightway proceeded to drop into Roger's outstretched arms.

"She has fainted away," said Roger as he laid her on a sofa in the sitting room. "Eliza," turning to his grim featured housekeeper, "there is trouble at the Barton ranch, and I must go, but watch over Nancy. You will know what to do, and guard her as you would your own child. Ben and Gallagher will remain with you."

With a last glance at the sweet, pale face on the pillow, Roger turned and rushed out into the yard, where his men were piling on to their horses.
In a moment twenty of them were flying toward Cinder canyon, and the disgruntled Gallagher and his companion were left behind.

Long afterward old Hepsy tried to describe the battle of Barton's ranch, but words were inadequate.

"Lawsy, chile," she told her listener,
"I jest wish you could hev been dere looked upon her father as Roger Dare.

"I am so glad you are safe—safe, father," she sobbed, clinging to Barton. "I told you he would come!"
"Yes, darling," smiled Barton over her sunny head. "He has come, indeed, and he tells me that he has come to stay!"
Nancy was silent for awhile, and then she timidly put a hand toward Roger, her eyes still hidden on her father's sleeve. And when she lifted her eyes at last and looked shyly around she found herself standing hand in hand with her father and Roger Dare.

And Aunt Hepsy, who was an interested observer of this scene, was scrupulously to hear her master exclaim:
"Well, we can thank Sing-song Pete for this!" and Roger's happy answer:
"Heaven bless Sing-song Pete!"
But on the wedding day Nancy explained what they meant.

The Point of Contact.

The merchant who is alive to his opportunities will keep in constant touch with his customers, and with others whom he hopes will become his customers. He will keep them informed of the arrivals of new goods, the prevailing tastes or fashions, the latest improvements in things to eat or to wear, or to make housework easier.

And the point of contact is advertising. To advertise intelligently, is an evidence of progressiveness. It is safe to conclude that you will receive the best service and best value from the merchant who seeks your patronage by modern methods.

DR. HANNA'S DENIALS.

Hon. W. J. Hanna denied the Proudfoot charges, and the investigation was squelched when it began to get too warm. Mr. Proudfoot is still ready to prove them.

Hon. W. J. Hanna denied that the Imperial Oil company of Canada has any connection with the Standard Oil company of America, yet a suit is now pending in the state of Ohio to oust the Imperial Oil company from that state, as a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company.

Hon. W. J. Hanna denied the Bowman charge, and his government refused to allow an investigation. If the charges had been looked into and proven to be untrue, this result would have gone far to substantiate in the public mind the veracity of Mr. Hanna's denials in the other two cases. It would have gone far toward offsetting the effect of any future liberal charges.

The refusal of the government to permit an enquiry cannot be viewed in any other light than that Mr. Hanna dared not face the music.

The provincial secretary is convicted by the act of his colleagues, and future denials of Mr. Hanna will be no more effective from the public viewpoint than those of the past.

EXPENSE Vs. SAVINGS.

Here and there one finds a dairyman who hesitates about taking up cow testing because of the initial expense of about three dollars for the necessary outfit of scales and bottles.

This would seem to be an extreme case of "Penny wise and pound foolish." So many examples are constantly cropping up of distinct saving through the small expenditure that they should be noted for the encouragement of those who still hesitate.

Cows have been bought at auction time after time, discarded by owners who were evidently absolutely ignorant of their high value as good producers. After one or two months' test the new owners have often refused $50 and $100 on their bargains. That is a pretty quick return on the cow testing expenditure. In fact amongst such discards at auction were picked up one or two world's champions, worth thousands of dollars.

This vital fact should not be overlooked: Hundreds of poor cows are being kept to day at huge expense of whose low value the owners are also also probably ignorant. Yet a three dollar outfit would help discover them, soon turning the present loss into distinct savings.

Then, thanks to that small expense many dairymen are now making an additional income of three hundred dollars from twenty cows, because the poorest have been discarded. It will abundantly pay every dairyman to keep dairy records.

TESTED SEED CORN.

The Ontario Corn Growers' Association was formed in 1908 by corn growers in Essex and Kent Counties south-western Ontario. A large show is held each winter, for over $2000 being given in cash for exhibits of seed corn. Last year the members of the Ontario Corn Growers' Association shipped 100,000 bushels of tested seed corn to Farmers' Clubs, and similar organizations in Ontario.

Last spring the Farmers' Club of this County ordered 125 bushels of tested seed corn from Essex and this corn gave such good satisfaction that repeat orders have been placed this year. A shipment of 100 bags of Wisconsin No. 7 Seed Corn has just arrived in Napanee, and is being distributed to farmers. This seed tested 95 per cent germination, before shipment, guaranteed to grow by a member of the Ontario Corn Growers' Association.

Farmers are recommended to plant Ontario grown tested seed.

After the business session the President of the Society will give an address on "SOME MORE PHOTOGRAPHS IN THE SOCIETY'S COLLECTION."

The address will be illustrated by a series of lantern views.

FEEDING YOUNG CHICKS.

DO NOT FEED TOO SOON—When the chick is hatched it has a sufficient supply of nourishment in the yolk of the egg to last it for several days. What the chick requires for the first few days is not food but warmth and rest.

A LITTLE SAND OR GRIT FIRST—When the chicks are removed to their brooding quarters there should be some coarse sand or fine chick grit scattered where they can have free access to it. They should then be left until they show positive signs of hunger which would be between the 2nd and 3rd day after hatching. They may then be given some bread crumbs that have been very slightly moistened with milk; this may be scattered on clean sand or chick grit. If being brooded by a hen she will see that no food is allowed to lie around, but if in a brooder that part of the food that the chicks do not pick up in a few minutes should be removed as nothing in feeding causes so much trouble as leaving food of that nature until it is sour.

FEED FOR THE FIRST 10 OR 12 DAYS—The following daily ration of five feeds given about two and half hours apart and continued from the time the chicks are two or three days out of the shell until 10 or 12 days of age may be altered or adopted to suit conditions:

First feed—Dry bread crumbs slightly moistened with milk.

Second feed—Finely cracked mixed grains or commercial chick feed.

Third feed—Rolled oats.

Fourth feed—Dry bread crumbs moistened with milk.

Fifth feed—Finely cracked mixed grains.

In addition to the above give the chicks daily a little green food such as grass, lettuce, sprouted oats, etc. Do not have the moistened bread sloppy but in a crumbly state and during this period let the chicks into fresh soil or grass if possible.

FEED AFTER 10 OR 12 DAYS—After the chicks are ten days to two weeks old, coarser food may be allowed. The infertile eggs may be boiled and mixed with the mash food and the bread and milk discontinued. Hoppers in which is put cracked grains and dry mash or rolled oats may be placed where the chicks can have free access to them. As soon as they become accustomed to the hoppers all hand feeding except the mash may be discontinued. If the chicks are on range it will be found that after a time they will get careless about coming when called, at which time the mash may be dropped and dependance placed entirely on the hopper feeding.

Place grit and water, also a dish of sour milk if possible where the chicks will have free access to them. Nothing provides animal food in better form than does milk, the chicks like it and thrive on it.

BY THE LIVE STOCK BRANCH OF THE DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE IN THE MARKETING OF THEIR WOOL CLIPS.

The Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is prepared to offer practical assistance this year to associations of wool-growers in the preparation and display of their wool clips for market. Associations, in order to receive this aid, must be organized in accordance with the regulations of the branch and membership is limited to actual owners of sheep. West of Fort William an association must contain at least 3,000 sheep, or sufficient to comprise one car-load of wool; east of there, a relative number. The services of expert wool classifiers, who will take charge of and perform the grading, classification and preparation of the wool, will be provided.

This proposal represents much more than a mere continuation of the work undertaken last year, when two wool classifiers, in the employ of the Live Stock Branch, visited the western Provinces and gave practical instruction and advice to sheep-raisers upon wool growing. Rather it means the introduction of a definite scheme whereby wool producers may be actually assisted in preparing and presenting their wools upon the market in the most acceptable fashion and thus be in a position to cater more directly to the requirements of the market. Moreover, it should prove effective in developing and improving the general status of sheep-raising and in creating an impetus to the production and preparation of an improved grade of wool and indirectly a better class of mutton.

The Branch will also provide the means for the establishment of a central bureau for the distribution of current information respecting domestic and foreign markets of wool, so that the associations may be constantly in command of complete knowledge concerning the source of the demand and the ruling price of all grades. Reliable information of this nature will serve as an excellent asset to an association in directing its policy and placing it in closer relationship with the demands of the trade.

Sheep-raisers desirous of taking advantage of this offer and of forming an association should write, for detailed information and application forms, to the Live Stock Commissioner, Ottawa.

FAMOUS DIAMONDS.

The Cullinan In the Rough Weighed One and One-third Pounds.

Until 1905 the largest diamond known was the Excelsior, found in 1893 at Jagersfontein by a native white loading a truck. It weighed 973 carats and was cut ultimately into ten stones weighing from thirteen to 115 carats. All previous discoveries were surpassed in 1905 by the finding of a stone weighing 3,025½ carats, or one and a third pounds. In the Premier mine in the Transvaal.

The Transvaal government bought this stone and presented it to King Edward, it having become known as the Cullinan diamond. In 1908 it was sent to Amsterdam and there cut into nine large stones and a number of small ones. The largest one weighed 516½ carats and is the largest brilliant in existence. All are of the finest quality and flawless.

The Kohinoor in its earliest known state weighed 180½ carats, but was later cut to 106.

Other famous diamonds, some from Brazil, some from India or Borneo, others from Kimberley, are the Star of the South, weighing 254½ carats; the Regent or Pitt diamond, weighing 136 carats after several cuttings; the Daryal-nur, weighing 180 carats, in the possession of the Shah of Persia; the Tiffany, weighing 125½ carats; the Victoria, weighing 180 carats and cut from a stone weighing 457 carats.—Exchange.

NOT MADE BY SPOOKS.

House Noises at Night That Sound Like Ghostly Footfalls.

In old houses the boards and joists forming the floors are often in a somewhat unstable condition. Many floors are permanently bent with the traffic of generations. Others are still undergoing the warping process. It is easy to imagine a floor which is in a perfectly ripe condition for the production of ghostly sounds.

During the daytime the timbers get bent with the weight of the various inmates of the house walking to and fro, but the noise and bustle of the day drowns the starting and creaking which goes on until the floor has recovered its natural position, as it is bound to do in time, wood being of an elastic nature.

When, however, the stillness of night comes on, these little intermittent movements may become magnified into mysterious footsteps, according to the imagination of the hearer. I myself

THE SPECIAL CALL OF THE GOSPEL AGE

Those Hearing Call May Become Members of Body of Christ.

The Church of Christ — Jesus the Head — The Church the Body — Anointed To Be Kings and Priests — Special Training for Office — Who May Qualify For Election — Terms and Conditions To Be Met.

PASTOR RUSSELL

May 3.—Pastor Russell, whose free Photo-Drama of Creation is being produced daily in many cities, preached to-day from the text, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." —Matthew 16:24.

First the Pastor showed that God had foreseen the entrance of sin and death into the world, and had purposed in Himself before the creation of the world a great Plan for man's recovery from sin and death conditions, to be accomplished through a Kingdom. This great Kingdom will differ from all others in that its monarch will be a King and a Priest. For this reason Christ is said to be "a Priest after the Order of Melchizedek," who was a reigning priest.

The Pastor then explained that God had foreordained that whoever would be appointed to this office of King and Priest must first demonstrate his worthiness by manifesting obedience to the Heavenly Father, even unto death. The first to be given opportunity thus to qualify for this great honor was Jesus, who offered Himself at baptism. For three and a half years thereafter He was thoroughly tested to demonstrate His loyalty to His consecration vow. When on Calvary He cried, "It is finished!" He referred to His sacrifice of Himself, His demonstration of obedience to the Father's will.

The Gospel Call.

Continuing his argument, the Pastor demonstrated that although more than eighteen centuries have passed since God raised Jesus from the dead to be a Prince and a Saviour, yet the world is still unsaved. Meantime, he declared, God has been calling out a special class for a special purpose. Those who hear this Gospel call are privileged to become, upon certain conditions, members of this class which God is selecting—this "Body of Christ, which is the Church." Not until this Body, of which Jesus is Head, is completed will God's Plan for the world's salvation be carried out.

The Pastor then stated the terms and conditions of eligibility to membership in this Body of Christ. God extends the invitation, and nominates those who accept it; but each must elect himself by compliance with the terms of the call. This call is a desire to come to God. Some have it from birth; others get it at their mother's knee, or through a hymn, a sermon, a book, etc. Whatever points to Christ as the Way to God consti-

When, however, the stillness of night comes on, these little intermittent movements may become magnified into mysterious footsteps, according to the imagination of the hearer. I myself live in a house the landing of which exactly illustrates my argument. Some hours after all are in bed the sound as of one stealthily creeping along the landing is heard—loud enough to startle a light sleeper into wakefulness.

Didn't Need the Hoe.

Some time ago a hobo meekly tapped on the back door of a suburban home and asked for something to eat. The good housewife responded that she would feed him on the back step along with Fido provided he was willing to earn the meal by cleaning out the gutter.

The tramp agreed, and when he had eaten his way through several sandwiches the housewife came out with a reliable looking hoe.

"You needn't have gone to that trouble, madam," said the hobo. "I never use a hoe in cleaning out a gutter."

"Never use a hoe?" said the woman.
"What do you use, then, a shovel?"

"No, madam," sweetly replied the hobo, starting for the back gate, "my method is to pray for rain."—Boston

Pump Anchors.

A pump is a queer sort of anchor, but it has been found to be the best kind of an anchor for a sandy bottom. The anchor consists of a heavy piece of metal with a hole down through the center and a tube from this hole to the ship, so that water can be pumped from the ship down through the tube and out of the bottom of the metal mass. When this anchor drops to the sandy bottom and the pump is started it makes quicksand of the material round it so that it sinks in deep. When the pumping stops the sand hardens and holds the anchor. To raise the anchor it is necessary only to start pumping again and loosen the sand.—Saturday Evening Post.

those who accept it; but each must elect himself by compliance with the terms of the call. This call is a desire to come to God. Some have it from birth; others get it at their mother's knee, or through a hymn, a sermon, a book, etc. Whatever points to Christ as the Way to God constitutes an invitation.

Walking In the Narrow Way.

To those who turn away from sin and accept Christ as their Redeemer, the Saviour says, "If any man would come after Me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." The Pastor explained that to deny one's self is to give over one's self-sufficiency, one's desire to do one's own will, and to accept instead the Divine will. Whoever does this dies to earthly ambitions, hopes and desires, and in their stead receives Heavenly ones.

The Pastor then showed that to take up the cross is not always understood by the one starting in the narrow way. Gradually he perceives that it is the crossing of self-will with the Divine will. But if his consecration is genuine, the child of God will leap to rejoice in every trial.
The Heavenly Father will cause the way to open before him, and will with every trial provide the way of escape.

To follow Christ signifies patient continuance in cross-bearing. Each one in the narrow way must thus demonstrate his loyalty to God and to the principles of righteousness.
Therefore the New Creature is privileged to grow in Christlikeness.

The Church, Which Is Christ's Body.

Whoever takes these steps comes into the spirit-begotten Body of Christ, the Church, declared the Pastor. This spirit-begetting took place at the moment when, having presented their bodies living sacrifices, they were accepted of God. Then they became members of the Body, all of whom have the same anointing as had their Head. This anointing came upon Jesus at His baptism. On PentECost it flowed down to the Body, the Apostles being the first members.
Since then, each one coming into the Body comes under this anointing.
Those who press on faithfully unto death will become members of the Body of Christ in glory.

MONTREAL, May 4.—Prices for good to choice steers showed an advance of 10c to 25c per 100 pounds, as compared with last week. The lower grades and cows and bulls, however, were unchanged. Trade was rather slow at the opening of the market, on account of the higher prices demanded, but later the demand improved, and a fairly active business was done, due to the fact that both packers and butchers were short of supplies.

The market for hogs was lower, owing to increased offerings. Prices showed a decline of from 25c to 50c per 100 pounds, with the demand slow, selling at $9 to $9.25 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.
Ontario hogs were in good demand, at $9.65 to $9.75 for selected lots.

Spring lambs were in stronger demand at from $4 to $7 each, as to size. Sheep were steady, as were calves.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $8.35 to $8.50;

CROOKS GO BY CLASSES

AND EACH ONE STICKS TO HIS OWN SPECIAL TRADE.

The "Artist" In Criminal Circles Is Not a "Bad Man" But Trusts to His Wits — "Yegg" or "Strong-Arm" Is Desperado Who Fights Arrest — Petty Thief Is Almost Too Small to Catch.

Criminals, in the opinion of the police, are divided into three classes. To the experienced Toronto detective or police officer each class has its different peculiarities which are readily identified by the work of the criminal. It is just this work which furnishes the detectives with the clues which lead to the detection of the criminal and upon which the police base their hope of securing convictions. Contrary to popular opinion, the real criminal, the artist in his profession, is not a "bad" man. That is, he is not the one to resist the police at the time of his arrest. Very rarely does he carry a gun or a "black-jack," but depends upon his wits, his knowledge of the law, and the ability of a clever criminal lawyer to get him out of his difficulties.

This class of criminal, as a rule, is the kind who floats bogus insurance companies, stock and mining concerns, and is a hard man to prove anything against. His operations are skillfully covered up by means of technicalities in the law and his victims are of the class who desire to obtain easy money, something for nothing, or as near nothing as possible. Cleverly-worded advertisements, personal letters, and alluring circulars are the tools of his trade, and, counting upon the fear of ridicule that the average man who has been swindled possesses, he operates boldly and with little fear of detection.

When the police do round up one of these characters they depend largely upon the evidence of one who has been victimized to secure a conviction. The fact that the plan to obtain this easy money has never been clearly or fully explained to the victim makes the task of convicting the "get-rich-quick artist" more difficult for the police. The kind of men that are usually selected are the gullible confiding class not overburdened with brains, and what a real clever lawyer does to a man of this kind when he gets him in the witness-box is pitiable.

Possessed with a winning personality, a prosperous appearance, and a smooth line of palaver, the swindler has the appearance of an up-to-the-minute business man, and for every one that the police convict there are a score who continue their nefarious operation undisturbed.

The criminal who is probably of the most dangerous type is the "yegg" or "strong-arm" man—the one who enters your house with the intention of stealing. Always armed, he realizes that he may be shot if detected, and takes no chances. It is your life or his, and if he sees you first it is generally yours. These men work in pairs, as a rule. And very seldom do they remain in one town for any length of time. The first thing they do on reaching a city is to locate others of their ilk. A place is determined upon where the spoils will be worthy of the risk. The house

THE WEEK IN THE LEGISLATURE

BOWMAN CHARGE

Only a verbatim quotation Bowman charges in the Legislature against the Provincial Secretary, could show the full seriousness of these charges and the awkward position in which the Government is put by refusing to investigate Government speeches and in articles have endeavored to throw the whole affair but a perusal charges themselves is a complete answer.

They are too long to quote but some of the most salient are here given. They begin as follows:—

"I, Charles Martin Bowman, member of the Legislature, electoral district of North York, Province of Ontario, Do hereby charge that an agreement, understanding was corruptly and improperly made between the Provincial Secretary, acting in his department, and as such representing the Government, and the organized liquor interests of the Province of Ontario, as represented by its organizations and representative, (the Provincial Secretary) department of the Government co-operate with the organized interests in helping to procure the defeat of the Scott Act in Huron and Peel; and that understanding or agreement arrived at under the circumstances and conditions hereinbefore stated.

I further charge that the said Snider did not go to the said performance of any official duty of his office, or because he thought it a part of his official duty to do so, alleged by the Provincial Secretary but went to the said county to the request and direction of the Provincial Secretary and the representative of the organized interests.

The liquor interest, through organization, had supported the Government in the bye-elections of the Province of Ontario, and had butted or expended substantial money to help secure the election of the Government candidates in the bye-elections, and had given the Government, or some member of the Government, assurance that at the next general election they would support the Government. The organized liquor interests had done so by raising very large sums to procure the election of candidates who would support the Government and the policy of the abolition of the liquor license and they had already raised large and substantial sums for this purpose.

By reason of the assistance the organized liquor interests given the Government candidates in the bye-elections, and by the assurance of support approaching general election the Government or a member thereof, it was agreed that the Provincial Secretary should organize liquor interests, their representative, that the Government or some member thereof co-operate with the organized interests to procure the defeat of the Scott act in the said three counties.

I further charge that the Provincial Secretary, a member of the Government of the Province of Ontario, himself and officials of his department, illegally, wrongfully and corruptly intervened, interfered with the free will of the voters of the counties of Huron and Peel in the Pretty Dead.

A native of a boom town who had moved away happened on one of his old neighbors who still lived there and asked him about the town.

"Oh, it's awful," replied the unfortunate neighbor. "Dearest place you ever saw. Say, you know Jones, don't you? Well, he dropped dead in front of the postoffice Sunday, and they didn't find the body till Thursday."—Everybody's.

Children Cry
FOR FLETCHER'S
CASTORIA

first it is generally yours. These men work in pairs, as a rule. And very seldom do they remain in one town for any length of time. The first thing they do on reaching a city is to locate others of their ilk. A place is determined upon where the spoils will be worthy of the risk. The house is studied; the habits of the occupants closely observed, and a general knowledge of the interior of the dwelling obtained. A night is selected and if conditions are favorable an entry is made.

"These men are desperate characters," said a Toronto detective interviewed on the subject recently. "They know that if they are captured it will be a long term in prison for them, especially if they have a record. If it comes to a chase the first thing they do is to dispose of their booty, if they have obtained any; next come the firearms, for they realize that if caught with either their chance of getting off scot free is slight indeed."

Wealthy homes, small banks, and warehouses are selected by these men as worthy of their attention. The much-exploited burglar kit so well described in cheap novels is now practically relegated to the age of muzzle-loading cannon. Science has done a great deal to help the modern burglar, and his tools take up but little more space than those of the ordinary physician. About six inches of thin, tempered steel, a diamond glass cutter, an electric drill, and a bottle of "soup," or nitro-glycerine, and the crook is ready for his work. The thin steel is used to obtain an entrance. The electric drill bores a small hole in the safe, the use of the "soup" follows, and his work is practically completed.

About two years ago, Detective Wallace of Toronto walked into a pawnshop in York street. Inside were three men making arrangements to dispose of some goods. At first the men talked readily, but upon cross-examination they became uneasy, and one of them attempted to leave. The detective sought to detain him. Realizing that they had not been successful in allaying the officer's suspicions the three saw that their only chance was in making their escape. Turning upon the officer they knocked him down, broke his jaw, and left him badly battered in the store. But before three hours had elapsed they were all in custody, and two of them are now serving a three-year sentence.

The third type which causes the police considerable trouble is the petty thief, pickpocket, and small criminal. His thefts are so small, his methods so mean, that their very pettiness makes him a hard man to put safely away. This class of crook works, as a rule, in crowded street cars, public gatherings, departmental stores, and railway stations. It is the keen-eyed detective who knows and understands their methods that is responsible for their downfall.

Scott act in the said three. I further charge that the Provincial Secretary, a member of the Government of the Province of Ontario himself and officials of his department, illegally, wrongfully and with intent, intervened, interfered with, influenced voters of the county of Welland, Huron and Peel in connection with the said act, on the subject of the adoption of the Scott act and the prevention of intemperance, illegal, wrongful and corrupt, being so done and committed for the purpose of preventing the adoption of the said act, the purpose of promoting and assisting the co-operation and assisting the liquor interests of the Province in favor of the Government."

It is frankly amazing that such serious and deliberate charges against the Government should be made. The situation in this respect is worse than last year. Proudfoot charges. There is a grant an enquiry which was at first refused. Here they have now granted an investigation, implying it might be.

FERGUSON AGAIN

Howard Ferguson of Grenville has been building up a reputation for political unscrupulousness, well exemplified in his actions in the long hours of the Legislature, a time which, as he thought, not allow an effective reply, his allegations against Mr. Rowell in connection with some of his official duties. Mr. Rowell, who had time to look up his files in connection with the cases and was absolutely to refute the insinuation of Mr. Ferguson. The latter referred to Mr. Rowell's legal in connection with the Oka and the Sault industries.

In the former case Mr. Ferguson stated that Mr. Rowell had been retained by the Dominion Government as he had forfeited his seat as Mr. Ferguson himself. Mr. showed, however, that he had not come from the Dominion Government but from the Methodist Church. In connection with Sault industries there is a question from the Toronto News which to the inestimable services of all parties concerned, including the Province, by Mr. Rowell in the tangle in those industries.

GERRYMANDER.

In spite of most emphatic protest not only from the Liberals but from many outside, the gerrymander was put by the Government at the close of the Session. The Liberals are eliminated from three of the present held by them—namely the Bruces, which are changed from Liberal to Conservative and from Monck which is wiped out. Several other changes in the direction of strengthening materially the chances of Conservative candidates and the net result, if unfair, has led to storms of

JAP-A-LAC—the Gloom-Chaser

WHEN JAP-A-LAC enters your home, Gloom makes a hasty exit. For dust, dirt, and dangerous germs can find no resting place where JAP-A-LAC has been used. Old floors can be given a polished surface, easily kept clean by occasionally wiping with a damp cloth.

Dull, gloomy and unsightly furniture can be made to look like new. Tarnished radiators and hot water pipes can be given a permanent gold or aluminum finish, which will not rub off. Kitchen linoleum can be beautified, and its wearing properties increased—straw matting can be made waterproof, and its life more than doubled—cracked and fraying window shades can be renewed. Anyone can produce these wonderful results by the simple means of JAP-A-LAC—the gloom-chaser.

Made in 21 beautiful colors, and always put up in Green Tins bearing the name "GLIDDEN."

Get a can of JAP-A-LAC to-day at your local hardware store, and ask for a JAP-A-LAC color card and a copy of the little book, "A Thousand and One Uses of JAP-A-LAC."

NOTES.

The session, which closed its business on Wednesday afternoon and was finally prorogued on Friday, May first, lasted ten weeks and in a point of view of strenuousness, was admittedly the record session since the Gamey year of 1903.

The Workmen's Compensation Act was given its third reading and goes into effect on the first of January.

Hon. James Duff's Compulsory Enrollment Act was given its third reading. J. G. Anderson of South Bruce moved in amendment providing that the Council of any County might by by-law, exempt their district from the provisions of that Act. The amendment was not accepted. Mr. Duff pointed out that full compulsory registration and inspection would not come into force until 1918.

It is frankly amazing that after serious and deliberate charges against the Government should refuse enquiry. The question in this respect is even more than last year with the Scott charges. There they did not enquire which was afterwards

Here they have not even had an investigation, imperfect as it be.

It has been pointed out in the past and repeated in the press, Mr. Scott's denial of the charges in the case is not at all sufficient, as the charges are much too serious to be denied by any mere denial without substantiation of the facts as would be required in a full enquiry. Neither is the affidavit made by Provincial Secretary Inspector Snider himself of any moment in connection with the case. He declares that the explanation given by the Provincial Secretary Snider's visit to Huron, Peel and Simcoe was a true and correct statement, but, again, what was needed in the circumstances, was not any denial either from Mr. Hanna or Mr. Snider, but a Royal Commission judges to investigate for whole country asked for by Mr. Bowman.

FERGUSON AGAIN.

Mr. Ferguson of Grenville has been building up a reputation for unscrupulousness which has been lifted in his actions in the closing of the Legislature when, at which, as he thought, would have been an effective reply, he made an effective reply, he made an effective reply against Mr. Rowell in connection with some of his professional duties. Mr. Rowell, however, did not look up his files in connection with the cases and was able to refute the insinuations of Mr. Ferguson. The latter had referred to Mr. Rowell's legal services in connection with the Oka Indians in the Sault Ste. Marie. In the case Mr. Ferguson claimed that Mr. Rowell had been retained by the Dominion Government and that he had forfeited his seat as much as Mr. Ferguson himself. Mr. Rowell, however, that the retainer did not come from the Dominion Government but from the Methodist Church. In connection with the industries there is a quotation in the Toronto News which refers to the inestimable services rendered to the community, including the case, by Mr. Rowell in unweaving the tangled web in those industries.

GIGANTIC SEA WAVES.

Force of Those Raised by Earthquakes or Violent Storms.

The term tidal wave is erroneously applied to almost any unexpected wave that inundates the seacoast or the shore of a great lake. These waves are rarely if ever due to the tides since the real tidal wave is a phenomenon admitting of exact calculation and prediction, but they may be traced usually to some distant earthquake or violent storm.

When an earthquake occurs beneath the sea the vertical movements of the sea bed generate a great wave, which is propagated outward from the center of the shock and reaches the land after the arrival of the earth wave. In the open sea this wave is so broad that it cannot be perceived, but when it reaches shallow water near the shore it rushes forward as an immense breaker, sometimes sixty feet or more high and overwhelming everything in its course.

The sandy beach deposits and loose boulders are swept away, while inland the surface is strewn with debris. The velocity of these great sea waves is greater than the ordinary waves raised by the wind. A submarine earthquake near the coast of Japan in 1854 gave rise to sea waves which traversed the whole breadth of the Pacific at a rate of about 370 miles an hour. At Smoda, Japan, the waves were thirty feet high, while at San Diego, Cal., they measured only six inches. Such an earthquake wave near the coast of Peru once lifted a gunboat of the United States navy and landed it a mile inland.—Kansas City Star.

STAGE GHOSTS.

Kean's Contrivance to Make the Shade of Banquo Realistic.

I think it was Charles Kean who first resorted to illusion to make a stage ghost a little transparent, says a writer in London Tit-Bits. When he produced "Macbeth" at the old Princess' theater he manufactured a contrivance which allowed Banquo's ghost to appear through a transparent curtain.

Later on, when Mrs. Ann Radcliffe's "Romance of the Forest" was staged at Covent Garden theater, those responsible for its production arranged that the spook in the piece should be seen by the audience through a gauze of bluish gray color, so that the too corporeal effect of a live actor might be removed.

When the old playhouse in Drury lane opened, in 1794, with a performance of "Macbeth," Banquo's ghost was omitted. Although Mr. Kemble's acting was fine enough to make the audience almost believe that they really did see the ghost, yet the people were not satisfied until the system they had been used to was readopted and Banquo's shade allowed to trot boldly across the boards.

Reflecting mirrors and the cinematograph are coming in general use at the theaters, and with them it has been found possible to manufacture ghosts capable of striking terror into the hearts of all followers of the occult.

Whereupon his lordship drew forth a large envelope from his pocket and proceeded to fasten it to the trunk of a big tree which grew in the middle of the road, an act of premeditation which showed strange powers of prophecy. How could he, except by means of clairvoyance, have known before leaving home that he was not to meet his enemy face to face?

As Mr. Shaw afterward read the note and tossed it into the river, it is only fair that the world should know its contents while it hung unfolded to the bark of the tall tree. It said in a very scrawling hand: "Mr. Shaw, I have looked all over this end of your land for you this afternoon. You doubtless choose to avoid me. So be it. Let me state once and for all that your conduct is despicable. I came here personally to tell you to keep off my land henceforth and forever. I will not repeat this warning, but will instead, if you persist, take such summary measures as would befit a person of your instincts. I trust you will feel the importance of keeping off." To this his lordship bravely signed himself.

"There," he muttered, again holding his watch and fob up for close inspection, "he'll not soon overlook what I've said in that letter, confound him!"

He had not observed the approach of Randolph Shaw, who now stood, pipe in hand, some twenty paces behind him in the road.

"What the devil are you doing?" demanded a strong bass voice. It had the effect of a cannon shot.

His lordship leaped half out of his corduroys, turned with agonizing abruptness toward the tall young man and gasped "Oh!" so shrilly that his horse looked up with a start. The next instant his watch dropped forgotten from his fingers, and his nimble little legs scurried for territory beyond the log. Nor did he pause upon reaching that supposedly safe ground. The swift glance he gave the nearby river was significant as well as apprehensive. It moved him to increased but unpolished haste.

He leaped frantically for the saddle, scorning the stirrups, landing broadside, but with sufficient nervous energy in reserve to scramble on and upward into the seat. Once there he kicked the animal in the flanks with both heels, clutching with his knees and reaching for the bridle rein in the same motion. The horse plunged obediently, but came to a stop with a jerk that almost unseated the rider; the sapling swayed; the good but forgotten rein held firm.

"Ha!" gasped his lordship as the horrid truth became clear to him.

"Charge, Bonaparte!" shouted the man in the road.

while poacher. "Very good of you, I'm sure, to warn me."

"Good of me? It was imperative, let me tell you, sir. No man can abuse my servants and trample all over my land and disturb my fish!"

"Excuse me, but I haven't time to listen to all that. The note's sufficient. You've been practicing the running mount until it looks well nigh perfect to me, so I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll step back thirty paces and then you come over and get the watch—if you're not afraid of me—and I'll promise!"

"Afraid? Demmit, sir, didn't I say I was Lord Bazelhurst? Of the guards, sir, and the Seventy-first? Conf!"

"You come over and get the watch and then see if you can get back to the horse and mount before I get to the log. If I beat you there, you lose. How's that?"

"I decline to make a fool of myself. Either you will restore my watch to me or I shall instantly go before the themselves to little rats like Bazelhurst? Oh, the shame of it! Well, it's up to me. If I expect to 'make good' I've just got to fire her off these grounds."

Naturally he expected to be very polite about it—instinctively so. He could not have been otherwise. The horsewoman saw him step into the middle of the road, smiling oddly but deferentially. Her slim figure straightened, her color rose, and there was a—yes, there was a relieved gleam in her eyes. As she drew near he advanced, hat in hand, his face uplifted in his most winning smile—savoring more of welcome than of repulsion.

"I beg your pardon," he said; "doubtless you are not aware that this is proscribed land."

"Then you are Mr. Shaw?" she asked, checking her horse with premeditated surprise and an emphasis that puzzled him.

"Yes, madam," he responded gravely, "the hated Shaw. Permit me," and he politely grasped the bridle rein. To her amazement he deliberately turned and began to lead her horse, willy nilly, down the road, very much as if she were a child taking her first riding lesson.

"What are you doing, sir?" she exclaimed sharply. There was a queer flutter of helplessness in her voice.

"Putting you off," he answered laconically. She laughed in delight, and he looked up with a relieved smile. "I'm glad you don't mind. I have to do it. These feuds are such beastly things, you know. One has to live up to them whether he likes it or not."

"So you are putting me off your place? Oh, how lovely!"

"It isn't far, you know—just down by those big rocks. Your line is there. Of course," he went on politely, "you know that there is a feud."

"Oh, yes; I've heard you discussed. Besides, I met Tompkins and James this morning. Pardon me, Mr. Shaw, but I fancy I can get on without being led. Would you mind?"

"My dear madam, there is no alternative. I have taken a solemn vow personally to eject all Bazelhurst trespassers from my place. You forget that I am, by your orders, to be thrown into the river and all that. Don't be alarmed! I don't mean to throw you into the river."

"By my orders? It seems to me that you have confused me with Lord Bazelhurst."

"Heaven has given me keener perception, your ladyship. I have seen his lordship."

"Ah, may I inquire whether he was particularly rough with you this afternoon?"

"I trust I am too chivalrous to answer that question."

"You are quite dry."

"Thank you. I deserve the rebuke, all right."

"Oh, I mean you haven't been in the river."

"Not since morning. Am I walking too fast for you?"

"Not at all. One couldn't ask to be put off more considerably."

"By Jove," he said involuntarily, his admiration getting the better of him.

"I beg your pardon," with slightly elevated eyebrows.

"Do you know, you're not at all what I imagined you'd be."

"Oh? And I fancy I'm not at all whom you imagined me to be."

"Heavens! Am I ejecting an inno-

"Soldiers!" cried the rider, with a wild look among the trees.

"My dog," called back the other.

"He charges at the word."

"Well, you know, I saw service in the army," apologized his lordship, with a pale smile. "Get up!" to the horse.

"What's your hurry?" asked Shaw, grinning broadly as he came up to the log.

"Don't—don't you dare to step over that log!" shouted Bazelhurst.

"All right. I see! but, after all, what's the rush?" The other was puzzled for the moment.

"I'm practicing, sir," he said unsteadily, "how to mount on a run, demmit. Can't you see?"

"In case of fire, I imagine. Well, you made excellent time. By the way, what has this envelope to do with it?"

"Who are you, sir?"

"Shaw. And you?"

"You'll learn when you read that document. Take it home with you."

"Ah, yes; I see it's for me. Why don't you untie that hitch rein? And what the dickens do you mean by having a hitch rein anyway? No rider!"

"Confound your impudence, sir! I did not come here to receive instructions from you, dem you!" cried his lordship defiantly. He had succeeded at that moment in surreptitiously slashing the hitch rein in two with his pocketknife. There was nothing now to prevent him from giving the obstreperous young man a defiant farewell. "I am Lord Bazelhurst. Good day, sir!"

"Just a minute, your lordship," called Shaw. "No doubt you were timing yourself a bit ago, but that's no reason why you should leave your watch on my land. Of course I've nothing against the watch, and, while I promise you faithfully that any human being from your side of the log who ventures over on my side shall be ejected in one way or another, it would seem senseless for me to kick this timepiece into the middle of next week."

"Don't you dare kick that watch. It's a hundred years old."

"Far be it from me to take advantage of anything so old. Don't you want it any longer?"

"Certainly, sir. I wouldn't part from it."

"Then why don't you come over and get it? Do you expect me to break the rule by coming over on to your land to hand it to you?"

"I shouldn't call that trespassing, don't you know," began his lordship.

"Ah! Nevertheless, if you want this watch you'll have to come over and get it."

"By Jove, now, that's a demmed mean trick. I'm mounted. Beastly annoying. I say, would you mind tossing it up to me?"

"I wouldn't touch it for $10. By the way, I'll just read this note of yours." Lord Bazelhurst nervously watched him as he read; his heart lightened perceptibly as he saw a good humored smile struggle to the tall young man's face. It was, however, with some misgiving that he studied the broad shoulders and powerful frame of the erst-

"Come and get it."

"Senlawag!"

"By George, do you know if you get too personal I will come over there."

Randolph Shaw advanced with a threatening scowl.

"Ha, ha!" laughed his lordship shrilly. "I dare you!" He turned his horse's head for home and moved off a yard or more. "Whoa! Curse you! This is the demdest horse to manage I've ever owned. Stand still, confound you! Whoa!"

"He'll stand if you stop licking him."

"Halloa! Hey, Bazelhurst!" came a far distant voice. The adversaries glanced down the road and beheld two horsemen approaching from Bazelhurst Villa—the duke and the count.

"By Jove," muttered his lordship, suddenly deciding that it would not be convenient for them to appear on the scene at its present stage, "my friends are calling me. Her ladyship doubtless is near at hand. She rides, you know—I mean dem you! Wouldn't have her see you for a fortune. Not another word, sir! You have my orders. Stay off or I'll—throw you off!" This last threat was almost shrieked and was plainly heard by the two horsemen.

"By Jove, he's facing the fellow," said the duke to the count.

"Ees eet Shaw? Parbleu!"

"I'll send some one for that watch. Don't you dare to touch it," said his lordship in tones barely audible. Then he loped off to meet his friends and turn them back before they came too close for comfort. Randolph Shaw laughed heartily as he watched the retreat. Seeing the newcomers halt and then turn abruptly back into their tracks, he picked up the watch and strolled off into the woods, taking a short cut for the dirt road which led up to his house.

"I had him begging for mercy," explained his lordship as he rode along. "I was on his land for half an hour before he would come within speaking distance. Come along. I need a drink."

Young Mr. Shaw came to the road in due time and paused, after his climb, to rest on a stone at the wayside. He was still a mile from home and in the loneliest part of his domain. The Bazelhurst line was scarcely a quarter of a mile behind him. Trees and underbrush grew thick and impenetrable alongside the narrow, winding road. The light of heaven found it difficult to struggle through to the highway below. Picturesque but lonely and somber indeed were his surroundings.

"Some one coming!" he said aloud, as Bonaparte pricked up his ears and looked up the road. A moment later a horse and rider turned the bend a hundred yards away and came slowly toward him. He started to his feet with an exclamation. The rider was a woman, and she was making her way leisurely toward the Bazelhurst lands. "Lady Bazelhurst, I'll bet my hat," thought he with a quiet whistle. "By George, this is awkward! My first trespasser is in petticoats. I say, she's a beauty—a ripping beauty. Lord, Lord, what do such women mean by giving

"By Jove," he said involuntarily, his admiration getting the better of him.

"I beg your pardon," with slightly elevated eyebrows.

"Do you know, you're not at all what I imagined you'd be."

"Oh? And I fancy I'm not at all whom you imagined me to be."

"Heavens! Am I ejecting an innocent bystander? You are Lady Bazelhurst?"

"I am Penelope Drake. But," she added quickly, "I am an enemy. I am Lord Bazelhurst's sister."

"You—you don't mean it?"

"Are you disappointed? I'm sorry."

"I am staggered and—a bit skeptical. There is no resemblance."

"I am a bit taller," she admitted carefully. "It isn't dreadfully immodest, is it, for one to hold converse with her captor? I am in your power, you see."

"On the contrary, it is quite the thing. The heroine always converses with the villain in books. She tells him what she thinks of him."

"But this isn't a book, and I'm not a heroine. I am the adventuress. Will you permit me to explain my presence on your land?"

"No excuse is necessary. You were caught red handed, and you don't have to say anything to incriminate yourself further."

"But it is scarcely a hundred feet to our line. In a very few minutes I shall be hurled relentlessly from your land and may never have another chance to tell why I dared to venture over here. You see, you have a haunted house on your land, and I"—She hesitated.

"I see. The old Renwood cottage on the hill. Been deserted for years. Renwood brought his wife up here in the mountains long ago and murdered her. She comes back occasionally, they say; mysterious noises and lights and all that. Well?"

"Well, I'm very much interested in spooks. In spite of the feud I rode over here for a peep at the house. Dear me, it's a desolate looking place. I didn't go inside, of course. Why don't you tear it down?"

"And deprive the ghost of house and home? That would be heartless. Besides, it serves as an attraction to bring visitors to my otherwise unalluring place. I'm terribly sorry the fortunes of war prevent me from offering to take you through the house. But as long as you remain a Bazelhurst I can't neglect my vow. Of course, I don't mean to say that you can't come and do what you please over here, but you shall be recognized and treated as a trespasser."

"Oh, that's just splendid! Perhaps I'll come tomorrow."

"I shall be obliged to escort you from the grounds, you know."

"Yes, I know," she said agreeably. He looked dazed and delighted. "Of course I shall come with stealth and darkness. Not even my brother shall know of my plans."

"Certainly not," he said with alacrity. (They were nearing the line.) "Depend on me."

"Depend on you? Your only duty is to scare me off the place."

"That's what I mean. I'll keep sharp watch for you up at the haunted house."

"It's more than a mile from the line," she advised him.

"Yes, I know," said he, with his friendliest smile. "Oh, by the way, would you mind doing your brother a favor, Miss Drake? Give him this

"Here is the line, Miss Drake," he said, and then he turned and looked back at her. She looked depressed. She had been depressed her in turn to think of her leftover husbands who would love to her.

"Why is it that Evelyn does not tell me these things?" she found herself wondering as the night wore on.

CHAPTER III.

In Which a Dog Trespasses

PENELOPE was a perverse calculating young person who was her own mistress and privileged to ride as she pleased, but it seemed rather although splendidly decorous—she did not venture upon Mr. Shaw's estate for more than a week at first encounter with the feudal. If she found a peculiarly feminine satisfaction in speculating on his pointment, it is not to be wondered. Womanly insight told her that Randolph Shaw rode forth each day watched with hawklike vigilance the promised trespasser. In her imagination she could almost hear the curse the luck that was helping evade the patrol.

One morning after a rain storm with the duke to the spot where he had drawn his line in the road she felt a thrill of something she could define on discovering that the line on the opposite side of the line was disguised by a mass of fresh prints. She rejoiced to find that vigil was incessant and worthy respect it imposed. The desire to the haunted house was growing and more irresistible, but she it aside with all the reluctant verseness of a woman who worth while to procrastinate.

ceaseless, racking watch for trespass- ers.
 Penelope laughed aloud as she gazed upon the tangle of hoof prints. The duke looked as surprised as it was possible for him to look after the wear of the past night.
 “Hang it all, Penelope,” he said. “I didn’t say anything, don’t you know.”
 “I was just thinking,” she said hastily, “what fun it would be for us to explore the haunted house.”
 “Oh, I say, Pen, that’s going out of the way for a little fun, isn’t it? My word, it’s a filthy old house with rats and mice and all that—no place for a ghost, much less a nice little human being like you. They’re all like that.”
 “I think you are afraid to go,” said she.
 “Afraid of ghosts? Pshaw!” sniffed the duke, sticking out his chest.
 “Yes, Shaw; that’s whom you’re afraid of.”
 “Now, see here, Pen, you shouldn’t say that. Shaw’s a d—, a cad. See what Cecil did to him. Remember that? Well, pooh! What would I do to him?” Penelope looked him over critically.
 “I’ll admit that you’re larger and younger than Cecil,” she confessed grudgingly. “But they say Mr. Shaw is a giant killer.” The duke dropped his monocle and guffawed loudly.
 “Good!” he cried in the ecstasy of pride. His worn, dissipated face lighted up with unwonted interest. “I say, Pen, that’s the nicest thing you’ve said to me in a week. You’ve been so deuced cold of late. I don’t understand. I’m not such a bad lot, you know.”
 “Tell that to Mrs. De Peyton and Mrs. Corwith. They’re looking for the good in everything.”
 “By Jove, I believe you’re jealous! This is the proudest moment of my life.”
 “Don’t be silly! And don’t try to make love to me any more. Wait until I’m married,” she added, with a laugh, the irony of which escaped him.
 “But, hang it all, suppose you should marry some one else and not me?”
 “That’s what I mean.”
 “Oh,” he said, perplexed. Then, as if his stupidity called for an explanation: “I had a beastly night. Didn’t go to bed till 4. But, I say, why can’t I have the same privilege as these other chaps? Corwith makes love to you and so does Odwell, and, hang it, they’re both married. It’s rotten mean of—”
 “Their wives are accountable for their manners, not I. But, come; will you go to Renwood’s with me?”
 “I’d rather talk to you in that nice little corner of the billiard room at home if you—”
 “But I don’t need a brandy and soda. Oh!” This exclamation came with the discovery of an approaching horseman. “It’s Mr. Shaw, I’m sure.”
 Randolph Shaw, loyal to his feudal promise, appeared in the road a couple of hundred yards away. He drew rein and from that distance surveyed the two who were so near to encroaching upon his preserves. He sat straight and forbidding in the saddle. For a full minute the two factions stared at each other. Then, without a sign of recognition, Shaw turned and rode rapidly away.
 “He rides like a gentleman,” commented Miss Drake, after reflection.
 “Indian blood in him,” remarked her companion.

“Now, that’s where you wrong us. They’re not at home, you know. That’s just it.”
 “Never mind, Mr. Odwell; I’m going in.” She left him and entered the house. For a minute or two he looked after her in wonder and then, softly whispering, made his way over to where De Peyton, through some oversight, was, talking to his own wife. De Peyton unceremoniously announced that he was going upstairs to write a letter.
 Penelope, flushed with disgust and humiliation, drew near a crowd of men and women in the long living room. Her brother was haranguing the assemblage, standing forth among them like an unconquered bantam. In spite of herself she felt a wave of shame and pity creep over her as she looked at him.
 “Barnminster says the fellow ran when he saw him today,” his lordship was saying. “But that doesn’t help matters. He has been on my land again and again. Tompkins says, and Tompkins ought to know.”
 “And James, too,” said the duke with a brandied roar.
 “Can’t Tompkins and his men keep that man off my land?” demanded Lady Bazelhurst. Every one took note of the pronoun. Her ladyship’s temples seemed to narrow with hatred. Bazelhurst had told the men privately that she was passing sleepless nights in order to “hate that fellow Shaw” to her full capacity.
 “My dear, I have given positive orders to Tompkins, and he swears he’ll carry them out,” said he hastily.
 “I suppose Tompkins is to throw him into the river again.”
 “He is to shoot that fellow Shaw if he doesn’t keep off our land. I’ve had enough of it. They say he rode his confounded plow horse all over the west end the other day.” Penelope smiled reflectively. “Trampled the new fern beds out of existence and all that. Hang him, Tompkins will get him if he persists. He has told the men to take a shot at the rascal on sight. Tompkins doesn’t love him, you know.”
 Penelope went her way, laughing, and forgot the danger that threatened Randolph Shaw.

Which a Dog Trespasses.

Penelope was a perverse and calculating young person. She was her own mistress and privileged to ride as often as she pleased, but it seemed rather odd—so splendidly decorous—that she venture upon Mr. Shaw's estate more than a week after her counter with the feudal baron. She found a peculiarly feminine sat in speculating on his disappearance, it is not to be wondered at. His insight told her that Randolph rode forth each day and with hawklike vigilance for a misdeed trespasser. In her imagination she could almost hear him say that was helping her to be the patrol.

The morning after a rain she rode the duke to the spot where Shaw had his line in the road. She braved something she could not do on discovering that the wet soil on the opposite side of the line was covered by a mass of fresh hoof prints. She rejoiced to find that his was incessant and worthy of the time it imposed. The desire to visit the house was growing more irresistible, but she turned away with all the relentless persistence of a woman who feels it wrong to procrastinate.

"He rides like a gentleman," commented Miss Drake, after reflection.

"Indian blood in him," remarked her companion.

"Let us go home," said she, whirling her horse like a flash. The duke had some difficulty in keeping abreast of her during the ride, and he lost sight of her altogether after they dismounted at Bazelhurst Villa.

The momentary glimpse of a real man set Penelope's opinions on edge for the remainder of the day and night. Shaw, whatever else he might be, was a man. Even while others addressed her in conversation she was absentmindedly recalling to memory certain English gentlemen at home who could stand comparison with this handsome fellow across the danger line. But to compare any one of the men in Lady Bazelhurst's house party—oh, it was absurd! She looked them over. Dull-eyed, blase, frayed by the social whirl, worn out, pulseless, all of them. They talked automobile, bridge, women and self in particular. In the seclusion of a tete-a-tete they talked love with an ardor that lost most of its danger because it was from force of habit. One of the men was even now admitting in her ear that he had not spent an evening alone with his wife in four years.

"There's always something doing," he said. "A week or two ago, by Jove, you wouldn't believe it, but we had an evening turn up without a thing on hand. Strangest thing I ever knew. Neither of us had a thing on. We said we'd stay at home and go to bed early just to see how it felt. Well, what do you think? We sat up and read till half past 10 o'clock, and then both of us thought of it at the same time. We dressed and went down to Rectors' and waited for the theaters to let out. Three o'clock when we got home. You can't imagine what a queer experience it is being all alone with one's wife."

"Don't you love your wife, Mr. Odwell?"

"Certainly! But there's always a crowd." Both of them glanced over at pretty Mrs. Odwell. She was looking down at her plate demurely while Reggie Van Voort talked straight into her pink ear, his eyes gleaming with the zest of invasion. "I say, Miss Drake, you won't mind talking to me awhile after dinner, will you?" went on Odwell, something like relief in his voice.

After dinner she was obliged to set him straight in a little matter. They were sitting on the terrace, and he had thrown away his half smoked cigarette, an act in itself significant. She had been listening patiently, from sheer habit and indifference, to what he was saying, but at last she revolted.

"Don't! You shall not say such things to me. I am not your kind, I fancy, Mr. Odwell," she said. "I don't know why you should tell me of your chorus girl friends, of your suppers and all that. I don't care to hear of them, and I don't intend that you shall use me as a subject of illustration. I am going upstairs."

"Oh, come now, that's rather rough, just as we were getting on so well. All the fellows do the same!"

"I know. You need not tell me. And you all have wives at home, too," with intense scorn.

Armenian Peasant Life.

Among the Armenian peasants the old patriarchal system prevails. The entire family of a score or two of people of several generations lives beneath a single roof. Together both men and women till the fields in a primitive manner, and when the grain is ripe, they take a sheaf to the roadside that the passing stranger may give a present and thus bless the crop. Their houses are of stone roughly laid or of mud, or frequently they are half underground, and from a distance their domelike roofs resemble the mounds of a prairie dog settlement.—Christian Herald.

WHEN YOU EAT HAM

Baking In the Oven Is the Best Way to Cook It.

DESTROYS DISEASE GERMS.

It Also Gives the Meat a Fine Flavor, Besides Making It More Wholesome. Some Suggestions For Preparing It Palatably In This Way.

Pork is served frequently in cold weather because of its heat producing qualities. Ham, owing to the fact that it has been cured and smoked, is one of the most wholesome forms of pork. It should never be eaten raw, however. To eat it safely the ham should be well cooked before serving. The fat of pork is especially indigestible; but, owing to its leanness, ham is less open to objection on this score. Pork of any kind requires about five hours for digestion. It is therefore best served in the middle of the day, or a long time before retiring.

Ham should be boiled eighteen minutes to each pound of the meat, provided it is placed into boiling water immediately. If the ham is placed first in cold water and gradually brought to the boiling point it should be boiled at the same rate, but a half hour should be deducted to allow for the time until the water begins to boil. In other words, the ham should be left in the water after it begins to boil eighteen times its weight minus thirty.

Ham is more desirable in the baked form than in the boiled. It is baked fifteen minutes to the pound—eighteen if you like the ham very well done. The ham should be first washed in cold water. Then take baking soda, sprinkle it over the ham and scrub with a small brush. Rinse it in cold water and trim it.

Ham may be boiled before baking. After this has been done let it remain for an hour in the liquor in which it was cooked. Then take it out, let it get thoroughly cold and remove the skin. Rub the upper part of the ham with white of egg and sprinkle over it the sifted crumbs of dry bread, putting them on to form a crust a quarter of an inch thick. Sprinkle with pepper and set in the oven until the crust is brown and nicely shortened by the oozing fat. This will be in about a half was cooked. Then many times, let it get thoroughly cold and remove the skin. Rub the upper part of the ham with white of egg and sprinkle over it the sifted crumbs of dry bread, putting them on to form a crust a quarter of an inch thick. Sprinkle with pepper and set in the oven until the crust is brown and nicely shortened by the oozing fat. This will be in about a half hour. The ham should be served cold.

If you do not wish to bake a whole ham try the following:

Take two pounds of ham, cut three inches thick, half a cupful of grape juice, a cupful of boiling water, two cloves and an inch stick of cinnamon. Freshen the ham for two hours in cold water, drain, place in a baking dish with the other ingredients, cover and bake till tender, about one and a half hours. Remove from the liquor, add to it two tablespoonfuls of chopped raisins and thicken with half a table-spoonful of arrowroot dissolved in a little cold water.

Spiced baked ham is nice. Parboil a young ham for about an hour and a half. Lift the ham out of the vessel and pour cold water over it. Remove the skin and rub into the ham a handful of brown sugar. Dot with cloves, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and bake until tender.

Stuffed ham is a fine dish. Remove the bones from a ten pound ham, rub the inside with salt, pepper and sage and fill the space from which the bone was taken with a highly seasoned dressing. Fasten together, place in a pan, rind side down, and add a little water. Bake, basting often. An hour before serving rub the surface with sugar. It should be baked for about four hours. Serve hot or cold.

Ham baked with cider is especially palatable. The Boston cooking school gives the following recipe for preparing it: Let a choice ham stand covered with water overnight; drain and set over the fire in a fresh supply of cold water; let it heat slowly to the boiling point; then simmer for four hours. Remove the ham to a deep baking pan, take off the skin and pour over it one pint of the liquid in which it was cooked and one pint of hot cider; baste each ten minutes and let cook until the bones of the shin may be turned. Serve hot with a dish of spinach chopped and mixed with a small quantity of cream sauce, about half a cupful to a generous pint of spinach.

For sauce skim off the fat from the liquid in the baking pan. Take a pint of this liquid, one cupful of rich brown stock and thicken with one-fourth of a cupful of flour cooked in one-fourth of a cupful of butter. Season with salt and pepper and stir in one-fourth of a cupful of currant jelly.

The first part of the cooking may be done overnight in a fireless cooker. Apple sauce, apple and celery salad or cabbage salad may be served with the baked ham.

A material which will make the nicest sort of school dresses for girls of from six to ten years is ratine. It comes in such pretty colorings and in the stylish "one plaids which are the very latest in that line. The material is seven inches wide and sells at about a cent a yard. Cotton ratine, in shades, makes effective collar cuffs for the dresses of dark girls.

For the simple little peasant style which so many small girls are wearing, either piquet or linen is a fabric to employ. Piquet comes in various grades ranging in price from 15 to 75 cents a yard. It is seven inches wide and comes in colors. The very fine twills are used.

A corded novelty piquet which makes a very stylish little dress is bought. Another fabric which what resembles piquet is the rized cotton bengaline.

In the linens may be had many pretty shades of tan, rose, blue, and buff. They make up very actively with no trimming other than the hand embroidered scalloped done on tunic and shirt edge. The material comes in both the ramie smooth French weaves. It varies in price from 45 cents to $2 a yard; width from thirty-six to ninety inches.

This latter width is well liked by a woman who is an economical dresser. There is a brocaded linen which is very new and bids fair to be popular since there is a demand for the effects along all lines of dress materials.

The colored swisses are going to be used again this season, and very prettily they are with their quaint all-over patterns in flowered effects. A gray dotted with tiny pink roses of the faintest of them, and would make a very childish, but looking costume. The swisses are wide and priced at 75 cents.

The little lady of eight or ten has her dancing frocks made of pretty new challis so much in vogue. It will look charming, for the color and designs employed in the linens are beautiful. The bordered linens will make up particularly well. They are yard wide and priced at about 55 and 60 cents a yard. A very pretty piece has a cream ground covered with tiny blue dots. In the blue and white border a touch of old rose has been effectively introduced. One very pretty pattern shows a pale pink ground tinted with small white marguerites.

Here is a charming new creation for the future belle. It is carried in white cloth with bands of colored broiery. The skirt is laid in plaits, and the little coat has the closing, which is now the mode. Little tabs at the side are very effective.

does settle. It is customary in large families, where the calves are not an important item of value, to permit the cows to freshen once in fifteen or sixteen months.

Ordinarily, however, for dairy farm practices it is much more desirable to mate them so that they will freshen

Lindenwood Hope, the Holstein-Friesian cow herewith shown, is an animal of surpassing merit. She produced when four and one-half years old in seven days 30.61 pounds of butter, in thirty days 125.7 pounds of butter and in 365 days 1,164.31 pounds. Her milk yield for the year was 20,404.6 pounds, testing 4.56 per cent of fat. Her butter record is the world's greatest for her class.
During the test she carried a calf for seven months of the year, and hers is the best record ever made under like conditions. Lindenwood

Fayette, O.

once each year. This practice stimu-lates the milk flow, and unless a cow is particularly a persistent milker she is less apt to give as much milk if irregularly bred and not permitted to freshen at frequent intervals. The animal will keep in good condition physically if not bred. In fact, she is very apt to put on an excessive amount of flesh, and this is one of the reasons why she is less apt to conceive when mated.

Instances are frequent where cows have been used for family purposes and not bred for intervals of two years or more, but it is the exception rather than the rule to have such animals give milk enough to pay adequately for the care involved in their maintenance. If desired to carry a cow over from spring freshening to fall freshening or if necessary to avoid calving during fly time the practice is justified.

THE SWINEHERD.

Keep the pigs warm. They will grow all winter if conditions are right, says the Farm Journal.

With bacon at 25 or 30 cents a pound, it pays to keep pigs and keep them right.

If the hogs are warm and comfortable it takes less food to keep them thrifty.

The breeding sows should have a combination of foods and very little corn.

They must have some succulent foods—roots, vegetables, etc., and clover hay.

The brood sows must have exercise to be healthy. Bad luck with them can always be traced to ignorant or careless handling by the owner.

Separate the breeding sows as they begin to grow heavy.

A jam from a boss sow may cause the loss of the pigs and the sow too.

SHEEP ON SMALL FARMS.

Economical Meat Producers and Valuable as Weed Destroyers.

In discussing the future meat supply in a recent government bulletin one of the writers said: "Sheep are not generally profitable to the farmer. Their numbers are slowly decreasing nearly everywhere except on the ranges, and the latter are so fully stocked that not much increase is to be looked for in that direction. There is no probability of any considerable future increase in the number of these animals."

It would seem that this writer is overlooking the possibilities along the line of sheep growing as a small farm industry, says the Kansas Farmer.
Properly handled there is no more profitable farm animal. Another writer in this same bulletin seems to give the sheep more consideration as a meat producing animal. This writer takes up in detail the various ways in which the average farm can get into the meat production business. One of the possibilities he mentions is: "By raising sheep more extensively in the corn belt and in the eastern states. The importance of the wool industry causes farmers to overlook the value of sheep for mutton and as weed destroyers. A small flock of sheep of one of the mutton breeds should be kept on every farm to graze the roadways, the stub-

HAD TO STOP WORK FROM THE PAIN

Suffered Ten Years Until
"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

ST. THOMAS, ONT., May 22nd, 1913.

"I was troubled for ten years with the most distressing Constipation and Indigestion of the worst form.

No one could have been worse with these troubles than I was for this long time.

The pain from Indigestion was so severe that many times, I have had to stop work and lie down until the acute spasms passed away.

I took a lot of medicine—in fact, I guess I took about everything that was advertised—and gave them all a fair test—but got no relief. About a year ago, however, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives". I am mighty glad I did so for they seem to be made exactly for me.

They gave results in a very short time and I am now free from these diseases and enjoying perfect health.

My wife also used "Fruit-a-tives" and we both think they are the best medicine ever made."

WHEAT AND ITS BYPRODUCTS.

As wheat is the favorite grain of man, so it is also popular with poultry, being attractive in color, size, shape, flavor, easy of digestion and free from coarse hull.

It is called the safest grain for poultry, and in protein (10.2) and carbohydrates (73) it is not quite so well balanced as oats, but it is without the coarse, indigestible hull, and it contains more protein and starch and less oil and fattener (carbohydrates) than corn.

Red wheat is best for poultry and pigeons, being more digestible than white, which has more starch, and new wheat is more difficult to digest than old. Middlings and bran, the by-products of wheat, are very valuable feeds and are used by many in preference to whole wheat. They are cheaper and, with other grains and meals, may be manipulated to form a balanced ration. The shell of wheat is Handled With Care It Makes an Excellent Winter Feed.

The value of silage for horses is greatest as a means to carry them through the winter season cheaply or to supplement pasture during drought. To cheapen the ration of brood mares in winter no feed has more value than good corn silage. If grain goes into the silo with the stover no additional grain is needed for brood mares, hay being the only supplemental feed necessary. If there is little grain on the corn the silage should be supplemented with one pound of old process linseed oil meal or cottonseed meal daily per thousand pounds live weight, sprinkled over the silage.

Horses to be wintered on a silage and hay ration should be started on about five pounds of silage daily per thousand pounds live weight, the grain and hay ration being gradually decreased as the silage is increased until the ration is twenty pounds silage and ten pounds of hay daily per thousand pounds live weight. It will require about a month to reach the full feed of silage, but the period may be decreased somewhat, depending on the judgment and skill of the feeder.

Mares fed in this manner will be in splendid condition for foaling, and, so far as the writer's experience goes, the foals will be fully as vigorous, with just as much size and bone, as if the mares were fed the conventional grain and hay ration.—U. S. Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

Weed Seeds In Silage Killed.

That the seeds of the common field weeds when siloed with corn, peas or any other forage used as silage will not retain sufficient vitality to germinate in the spring when returned to the land mixed with manure is the belief of experiment station men. While there are not experiments on record with regard to the combined chemical action of silage and manure on the germination of seeds, it is quite likely that there is little danger of seeding valuable fields with noxious weeds in this manner.—Kansas Farmer.

Watch Straw Fed Horses.

Horses' mouths should be examined regularly once a week when feeding on wheat straw. The beards from the grain ball up in the horse's mouth and penetrate the gums, sometimes causing the animal to have a very sore mouth, and it refuses to eat. The hard clots are easily removed. A change of feed occasionally for a day helps to keep the horses' mouths free from cankers.

Rich Strippings.

When the farmer understands that the last strippings of a dairy cow are over 500 per cent richer in cream than the first few pulls he may be a little more thorough in his work during the milking hour.

Art For Art's Sake.

"I like to see a man take an interest in his work."
"So do I. I once knew a policeman who was so enthusiastic that it positively pained him to see anybody out of jail."

A Mean Man.

Medical Man—Jobson has done the meanest thing I ever heard of. He came to my house the other night, ate a big dinner, got indigestion and then went to another doctor to be cured.

The Oxford Down sheep is very popular with those farmers who desire an animal that will produce a good mutton carcass and at the same time give a good account of itself in wool. It is a ready fattening sheep and is seen at its best when crossed with another Down breed. Admirers of the Oxford say that it combines size, weight of fleece and the thickness of flesh of the Cotswold with the compactness and form of the Hampshire, from which it originally descended.

IN THE WHEATFIELD.

the bran, between the bran and flour. The middle layer is the middlings, rich in gluten, of high protein content (12.8 protein, 60.7 carbohydrates).

The middlings make muscle and blood and when wet are sticky and when used in mash make the bran, ground corn and oats stick together and make them more attractive and edible. Wheat bran is a much used byproduct.

It is not so rich in protein as some grains, its content being 12.2 protein, 45.3 carb, but it is rich in mineral (5.8 ash), which especially makes bones and eggshell and adds certain mineral salts needed in digestion and the body.

Bran is particularly valuable because it adds bulk to the ration—makes it spongy, so necessary that the digestive juices may work through.

In summer on range the hen adds this bulk from vegetable sources, but in winter it must be supplied, as the grain ration is too concentrated, and bran supplies the deficiency, and, being bulky and not rich in its elements, it does this without adding much to the fattening quality of the ration, which is necessary to avoid, as overfat is so detrimental to egg production. Adulteration of bran is generally the case when it is very fine. When very coarse it is about all fiber. The medium is best, and bran is of good quality when it chews into a cud and the particles stick together.

Novel Bath Luxuries.

Floating bath bowls of wood fiber are convenient and luxurious. They are filled with fine French soaps, perfumed with cologne, lavender, violet and rose. A fiber flesh brush comes with each bowl. There are also fiber shaving bowls, filled with a superior quality of soap, which make an attractive gift for the man of the household.

Hicks—In sad and loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs.
William Hicks, sr., who passed away
May 12, 1912.
Oft we sit and think of our dear wife and [mother,
And our hearts are filled with [pain;
Oh, this earth would be a Heaven
Could we hear her voice again.
Twelve long years ago she left us,
How we miss her loving face,
But she is ready to remember,
None on earth can fill her place.
